5. Contemporary collections/stories

Objective — to preserve and provide access to locally held collections of significance, and collect and tell local stories from the past and the present that can demonstrate state and/or local significance. The priorities for this category are proposals for post-1960 heritage and Indigenous stories that can demonstrate strong community participation and ownership.

RADF grants can support:

- documentation, preservation, interpretation projects and collection management training through community-based workshops
- community stories, which can be documented in a variety of forms and mediums, including: plays, videos, artwork, digital exhibitions, education programs, oral histories and publications.

Community organisations such as historical societies, museums, libraries, archives, galleries, Indigenous and migrant community groups which collect and provide public access to their cultural heritage collections are eligible to apply.

Applicants must provide a statement of significance with their applications.

Clarification

Post 1960 is listed as a priority. This does not mean no other era can be funded.

Collecting organisations wishing to apply for funding under dot point 1 above, can initially apply for support to develop a Statement of Significance for the whole, or part of the collection. Once this Statement of Significance is completed then the organisations are eligible to apply for funding for other projects associated with the collection.

For all other applications under dot point 1 above, the collection's Statement of Significance must be included with the application.

For dot point 2 above, there is no requirement for a Statement of Significance.

In many areas of regional Queensland, a Museum Development Officer (MDO) can provide assistance with the development of the Statement of Significance. Costs associated with this project could be funded under this RADF category.

There are six MDOs based in regional Queensland. An MDO can work outside their specified region, so either contact the MDO in your region directly or for those unsure of whom to approach, contact Deborah Tranter, Director Queensland Museum Regional Services on 4639 1971.

The current areas serviced by the MDOs are as follows.
